

When we first moved the ski lodge to Tom Preston's yard (Newcastle side of French Fort Cove) in 1979 there was no bridge across Crow Brook, where the covered bridge is today. Skiers had to sidestep down the side of the bank, cross some logs we had across the water and sidestep up the other side of the bank to get to the trails. After that we managed to get a narrow foot bridge across the brook. If I remember correctly it was not wide enough to take our old grooming skidoo across. We have come a long way! NORM